Death of George McDouall.

We were yesterday informed of the death of George McDouall, the druggist, who for a time was proprietor of the drug store now conducted by B. F. Foster. Mr. McDouall died at the residence of his brother-in-law, F. R. Morgan, at Oak Harbor, Whidby Island, Washington Territory, on July 23. Deceased had studied for the medical profession, having been a member of the same class with Dr. Smart of this city, at Bellevue College, New York. While at college he was stricken with paralysis, and was obliged to forego further study, having but one more course to take. He left Carson last January for San Francisco with the intention of resuming the study of medicine. A short time ago he removed to Washington Territory, where he had some valuable property. Deceased possessed the traits of a gentleman and won the respect of all with whom he came in contact.

Not a Woman After All.

The general impression now is that the person who perambulated the streets late on Saturday night last dressed in female attire and armed with a business like bludgeon, was not a woman, but a man. The lower portion of that person's face was enveloped in a white handkerchief, presumably to conceal whiskers. It is believed that the disguise was adopted by some one who had a desperate act to perform and who desired to lead the police astray by donning the habiliments of the sex.

Free Boarders.

The Ormsby House people estimate that they have at least twenty dead head boarders, in the persons of Washoe Indians. These fellows appear in the rear yard of the hotel as regularly as meals are served. At times, however, they are compelled to resort to the swill barrels for a sufficiency to supply their ever hungry stomachs.

Seventy-Five Days.

Henry Nichols, was yesterday tried for cutting a colored woman. The charge against him was modified to one of disturbing the peace, and he was sentenced for seventy-five days. This will be the most protracted spell of sobriety that Henry has experienced for many years.

Meeting Notice.

A Genoa Darkey in Trouble.

Frank Pruett, a Genoa colored man who was at one time sent from that village to the State Prison here for stealing, and who was subsequently pardoned out, is again in the toils. He was recently arrested in San Francisco for committing numerous burglaries which have been fastened upon him. Pruett was known in this section as the best jumper in the State.

A Correct Move.

We are informed that at the next meeting of the Board of School Trustees a strong effort will be made to have Miss Bertha Wagner, of Empire, appointed to teach one of the schools in this city. Miss Wagner is a young lady of splendid character and attainments, well qualified for such a position. She received her education in this county.

A Curiosity.

A few days ago a hair snake was taken out of a small wash stand hose in Vierra's barber shop. The snake, about the dimension of a horse hair, was broken into several parts and then placed in a bottle of water. The fragments are still alive and move about the water with considerable energy.

The Rayercraft Trial.

The empanelling of a jury in the Rayercraft case was begun on Tuesday, and several venires have been exhausted without the desired result. The process of getting a jury will be continued to-day.

A Yankee Captain Outwitted.

Capt. Farrow of Isleboro tells a good story of himself which occurred a few years ago while he was trading at Key West. It was a case where a Northern Yankee was outwitted by a Southerner. The Captain was trading in a small vessel, and had been up the coast to Tampa Bay, where he purchased twenty dozen chickens, paying $4 per dozen. The chickens ran all the way in size from a few days old to fullgrown ones. At Key West a hotel landlord came alongside and asked the Captain how he sold his chickens. The Captain replied: "If you pick them out I shall charge you $6 per dozen; if you let me pick them out you can have them at $3 per dozen." "All right," said the hotel man "you pick them out." The Captain selected several dozen of the smallest, when the man said: "Go ahead, I want more." The Captain was now among his largest fowls, and wished the man would stop, but he still said: "Go on." The Captain saw the point at last. The man kept him selecting until he purchased the entire lot at a loss of $20 to the owner. After this the Captain sold his chickens on a different plan.

Take Your Choice.

The universally accepted brands of whiskies of the present day are Old Cremorne, Teakettle and J. E. Cutter. They are at the head of the list, the most expensive and considered the purest, and recommended for medicinal purposes. For the pure and genuine article they cannot be surpassed. These brands are kept by J. E. Dealy, at his saloon in the County Building. First-class cigars also on hand. Billiard tables and card rooms, and everything in style. a19

Colonel Bowie's Death.

Sensational articles appear in a special edition of the Houston Daily Post written by W. P. Zuber of Grimes county, professing to give the first full account of the massacre of the Texas garrison in the celebrated fortress of the Church of Alamo, at San Antonio, March 6, 1838. Zuber says he got the account from a Mexican fifer known in Texas as Polin, who was with the Mexican army at the time of the capture of Alamo. Polin says that after the Mexican soldiers had taken the fort, sealed the walls and put the garrison to sword, Santa Anna, accompanied by members of the staff, entered the fort and viewed the Texans slain. Polin being a fifer and a privileged character, entered with Santa Anna and immediately behind the great Mexican Dictator. Santa Anna ordered the citizens of San Antonio to pick out the corpse of Colonel Travis, the Texan commander, which he ran his sword through. After Santa Anna retired from the fortress, two Mexican officers and a number of soldiers entered and proceeded to pile up the bodies of the dead Texans in order to burn them. In the search for corpses they discovered the celebrated Texan patriot, Col. James Bowie, in a secluded apartment of the fortress lying sick upon stretchers. One of the officers looked at the sick officer and asked the other if he knew him. The latter said he thought he did, and that it was the infamous Bowie. The officers berated Bowie for fighting the Mexican Government after having married a respectable Mexican lady. He denounced them for fighting under a tyrant like Santa Anna. They ordered him to shut his mouth, and Bowie said, "Never, for your sort." "Then," said the senior officer, "we will relieve you of your tongue." They then had soldiers split open his mouth, cut off his tongue and throw his body, still writhing, upon a pile of corpses. The latter was saturated with camphene, a match was struck into the combustible fluid and a tall pillar of flame immediately shot up, and one of the American officers pale and trembling, said to his companion: "That fire takes Bowie's soul up to God." This is the first account of the last moments of Colonel Bowie ever published.—Hartford Dispatch.
